SoftPlan V 13.4.0 Professional (Retail) Download: From Apa citation Facing a global recession, public and private health care administrators are becoming increasingly aware of the need to cut costs in order to maintain a viable health care system. The need for appropriate training for nursing faculty is equally pressing. This article addresses training of nursing faculty in the theory and practice of health care delivery in nursing education. Using examples from the academic literature and information obtained from interviews with eight nursing program administrators, it demonstrates that faculty development programs can be effective if they help faculty develop new ideas and can be flexible in meeting the special needs of nursing programs. It describes the limitations of faculty development programs designed to meet general needs. The article concludes with recommendations for faculty development programs in nursing education. (Contains 2 tables and 19 references.)Q: jQuery Sorting and reordering I have a table with headers and data. I want to keep track of what row and header is being hovered over and then sort them when the mouse leaves the row. I am having a bit of trouble sorting the data that is in the table. I thought of a solution where I keep track of the rows and their headers. Here's the idea: `$(document).ready(function(){
